like this is naturally accompanied by a strong feeling of indignation that the undoubted rights of these officers of the mercantile marine are so unthinkingly and blunderingly interfered with. No Court in England could ever sanction the course that is now being followed in this matter. These mon's certificates of competency linve been issued upon quite as good authority as that which seems to have resolved to make them void; and we would suggest that, if the feeling of fairness is now altogether gone from the Councils of this small Colony, and no redress is given, a memorial should be forwarded to the Secretary of State on the subject. Probably even better then this would re a direct appeal to the Court for a dedision upon the case of Captain Hamin. We have seldom seen a worse muddle, with the possibility of a larger crop of evil consequences that must extend much-further than is generally. known. Why the Harbour Masterwho is, we presume, the only man in the Council who thoroughly understands the question did not explain the case, is more than we can say.

THE Senior Unofficial Member of the Legislative Council has buckled on his armour, and he sniffs the battle from afar. That is to say, the fight about the constructive clauses of the Public. Health Bill has been put off until a more convenient senson. There can be no question that Mr Ryrio is quite right in this -the fight has merely been put off. But nevertheless it is a good thing that it has been even put off, because now the proper sanitary measures can he proceeded with without unnecessary delay. Probably what the Senior Memher means is this,-that the Surveyor General failed in obtaining these opposed clauses through by way ofen Building Ordinance on a former occasion; that Mr Price, with a persistency after light and air that is positively charming, tried to do the same service by means of the Public Health Bill, but has again failed; and that Mr Price again reminds the Council that he is dederinined to return to the charge in the next Building Ordinance. Hence M Ryrie says this is no concession: the Surveyor General will not surrender his fad, and the Senior Member will not doff his armour. This seems to be the position from Mr. Ryrie's point of view. What we have previously stated, to the effect that the Surveyor General is the stickler tor impracticable and sweeping measures, was abundantle shown by yesterday's debate. Mr. Price bas evidently made up his mind every Chinese is to have light shed and THE meeting of the Legislative Council air pumped upon him, whether he will opened yesterday with the questions put or not, whatever be the cost. Mr Price Masses Butterfield & Swire inform us that by the Hon. A. P. Mac Ewen regarding has the public well-being so much at marine certificates.
